Introduction

About Northwest Regional Development Commission
The Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) is a regional planning and development organization that serves seven counties in Northwest Minnesota. Counties served include; Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, and Norman. The NWRDC’s goal is to supplement efforts by local units of government to maintain our economic strength and improve the quality of life in Northwest Minnesota.

The NWRDC has a strong relationship with the transit providers within the region and feels our leadership in the transportation sector will help in developing coordinated transportation services for all the users in the NWRDC Region.

Project Background
The Minnesota Departments of Transportation and Human Services, in collaboration with other state agencies, worked with the Metropolitan Council and other local governments and organizations to create regional transportation coordinating councils as appropriate throughout Minnesota. Coordination between transportation providers and service agencies has been a goal and strategy to fill transportation gaps, provide more service with the same or fewer resources, streamline access to transportation and provide customers more options of where and when to travel.

The state agencies provide support for creating a statewide framework of 8-10 Regional Transportation Coordinating Councils throughout Minnesota in order to break down transportation barriers and offer a seamless system of transportation services. The Regional Transportation Coordinating Councils will be responsible for coordinating transportation services through a network of existing public, private and non-profit transportation providers.

MnDOT solicited a RFP for RTCC Organizational Grants in the fall 2017, and the NWRDC was awarded the grant for fiscal year 2019. This RTCC organizational development plan coverage area includes all seven counties within the NWRDC Region.

What is a RTCC
Minnesota Department of Transportation describes RTCCs as consisting of stakeholders interested in improving mobility for “transportation disadvantaged” – older adults, individuals with disabilities, individuals with low incomes, and/or military veterans. The most successful RTCC will include representatives from a wide range of agencies and interests.

RTCC board membership will be diverse and as comprehensive as possible, and include representatives from the region’s county department of social services, county commissioners from each of the 7-counties, Minnesota Area Agencies on Aging, Workforce Development, transportation providers, human services agencies, transportation and human services advocates, veteran service organizations, health care providers, private employment firms, Centers for Independent Living and public and private funders of transportation services. RTCC’s use Mobility Management to promote transportation and provide services to members and population.

What Is Coordination?
According to the Federal Transit Agency, 80 programs fund transportation services for specific populations, including disadvantaged people. Coordinating individual human service transportation programs makes the most efficient use of transportation resources by avoiding duplication of program efforts and encouraging the use and sharing of existing community resources. In communities where coordination is made a priority, citizens benefit from more extensive service, lower costs and easier access to transportation. Mobility managers lead coordination efforts with their extensive knowledge in regional transportation.

Mobility Management
Mobility Management is managing and delivering coordinated transportation services to the public by meeting the needs of the individual using a wide range of transportation options and service providers. Mobility managers function as policy coordinators, operation service brokers, and customer travel navigators. Unlike transportation service managers, mobility management focuses on individual needs instead of system improvements. The best term to describe mobility management is being a “one-stop shop” or “one call” system to obtain and coordinate transportation options.
